Teodoro: HQ visit not loyalty check

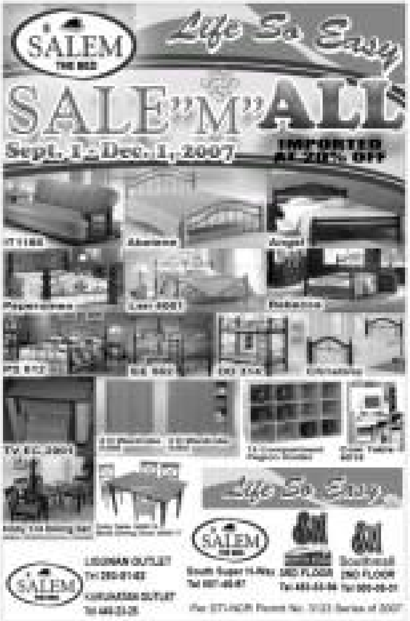

By Nikko Dizon

DEFENSE SECRETARY GILBERT Teodoro Jr. yesterday shrugged off speculation that his visit to Philippine Army headquarters was part of a "loyalty check" in the Armed Forces of the Philippines after former President Joseph Estrada was found guilty of plunder.

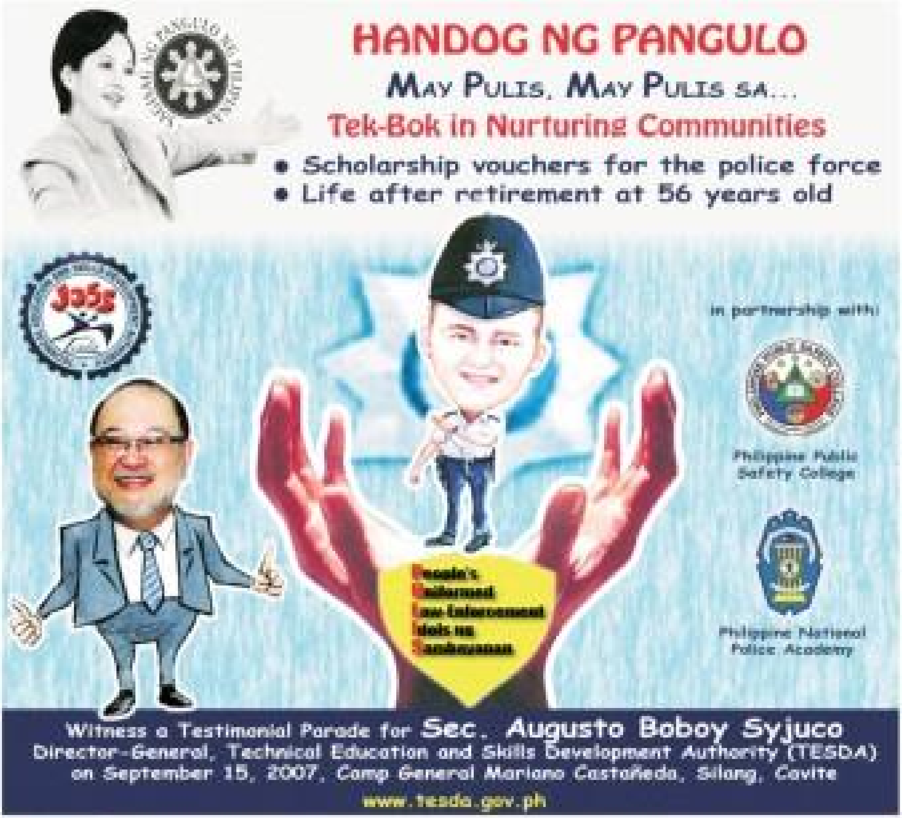

"There's no need for a loyalty check among the soldiers because I am sure they are professional and they are loyal to the chain of command," Teodoro said.

OPINION

Magnificent

THE MOTION OF DEFENSE COUNSEL TO DISpense with a full reading of the Sandiganbayan decisions in the perjury and plunder cases against Joseph Estrada has allowed the ex-president, his family and his allies to fudge the truth—and confuse the public.

This is unfortunate, because the rulings, especially the 262-page decision in the plunder case, are a clear example of solid, straightforward legal reasoning. There are certain errors, to be sure, such as an innocent confusion between the two Estrada vs. Sandiganbayan decisions upholding the constitutionality of the plunder law; but in the main the three Sandiganbayan justices outdid themselves. They sift confidently through the mass of evidence, organize the most salient, set forth their findings of fact—and then apply the law.

EDITORIAL

Every single assertion made by Estrada and his supporters since Wednesday's promulgation can be answered directly from the decision.

Sen. Jinggoy Estrada, for instance, assailed the court (the same court which acquitted him) for convicting his father on the illegal gambling charge. Since when did jueteng money, he asked for argument's sake, become public funds?

Dutch court orders Joma ...

Brain said the prosecution planned to appeal the decision to release Sison.

Probe to continue

"In the meantime, the investigation will continue, and Mr. Sison remains a suspect," he said.

Sison was accused of ordering the murder of Kintanar in 2003 and Tabara in 2004. The Communist Party, which the European Union designated a terrorist group in 2002, issued statements claiming it carried out both slayings.

"We're very happy Joma has been released now after 15-16 days of solitary confinement," said his close aide Luis Jalandoni, referring to Sison by his nickname.

"We are thankful to his lawyers, who worked very hard for his release," and supporters around the world, he said.

In 1992, Kintanar and Tabara broke away from the CPP due to differences over whether to pursue Maoist revolutionary strategy, upon which Sison founded the party in 1968 and its armed wing in 1969.

Small victory

Dutch authorities declined to disclose the nature of the evidence against Sison, but said it originated in both the Netherlands and the Philippines. His lawyers had been instructed not to disclose information from two hearings held since Sison's arrest.

In Manila, National Security Adviser Norberto Gonzales, who had revealed that the government helped the families of the two murdered men file the case in the Netherlands, had no immediate comment pending a verification of the reported court order.

PENSIVE MOOD Jose Ma. Sison photographed in April in Utrecht, the Netherlands, where he has been based the past 20 years.

"I have ordered increased protection for complainants and other individuals who may be the object of NPA vengeance. We have received information from very reliable sources the NPA will undertake ... in Metro Manila," Gonzales said.

Bagong Alyansang Makabayan (Bayan), the Philippines' largest left-wing federation which staged protests at the Dutch Embassy demanding Sison's freedom, cheered his release.

"This is just one small victory against the Philippine, Dutch and US governments, that conspired to persecute Sison," said the group's secretary general, Renato Reyes.

The Philippine government has long sought to bring Sison home to face charges stemming from his leadership of the rebel movement. But no extradition treaty exists between the Philippines and the Netherlands. Manila removed one obstacle toward such a treaty last year when it abolished capital punishment.

Sison describes himself as a political consultant for the National Democratic Front, which has been engaged in off-and-on peace talks with Manila to end the 38-year insurgency. The talks broke down in 2004, and the latest amnesty offer was designed to help restart negotiations.

Amnesty offer

In a speech at a peace forum in Manila late Wednesday, Ms Arroyo urged communist rebels to accept the government's new amnesty program or face military defeat.

Ms Arroyo said the guerrillas have posed a low-level threat for years, and "if we are to become a modernized country, we have to put a stop to their ideological animosity and their criminal activities once and for all."

"It is either amnesty or military solution. Whichever way, the communist rebellion must be stopped," she told the peace forum.

Last week, Ms Arroyo signed a proclamation offering amnesty to rebels who turn in their guns. The guerrillas rejected the offer as a gimmick.

The government also said it would set aside P500 million for the social integration of rebels choosing amnesty.

Restart peace talks

The latest move was an effort to restart peace talks, which suffered a setback with Sison's arrest in the Netherlands. Similar offers in the past have done little to settle the rural-based insurgency.

Ms Arroyo has repeatedly said she wants to end the Maoist rebellion—Asia's longest—by 2010, when her term ends.

"The military solution is our last option, but we are prepared to wield this option when peace is broken, reconciliation comes to [illegible] and development initiatives are halted," she said. "We will not step back in our fight to give peace and progress to the country."

The rebels quit Norwegian-brokered peace talks in 2004, accusing the Arroyo administration of instigating their inclusion on US and European lists of terrorist groups. With reports from Cynthia D. Balana, TJ Burgonio, Delfin T. Mallari Jr. of Inquirer Southern Luzon, and AP meeting. Solicitor General Agnes Devanadera was designated officer in charge of the justice department on Sept. 1.

Gonzalez admitted in May last year to having kidney stones, but said his health problem should not be a reason for him to leave his post.

Gonzalez also admitted he had been undergoing dialysis because of the high potassium levels in his body.

On Aug. 3, he was rushed to a hospital because of a bleeding ulcer. He went back to work after more than a week of confinement, despite doctors' orders that he rest for at least another week. Cyril L. Bonabente, Inquirer Research 2011," he added.

He said the problem with sugar investors was the lack of follow-through—always having good plans but not pushing through with them.

Before the passage of the Biofuels Law, he said that a number of investors had approached him, asking him to have the law passed as soon as possible.

"But when the law finally did pass, they were nowhere to be found. Where are they now? They should put their money where their mouths are," he said.

He said San Miguel should push through with its plans to go into ethanol production, the same with other investors who had earlier expressed interest in entering the industry.

"We need at least 17 plants to meet the demand for a 10-percent ethanol blend by 2011. The demand for next year is only at 300 million liters a year, but this will go up to 600 million liters a year by 2011. We really have to start now," he said.

Under the Biofuels Law, gasoline should have at least a 5-percent ethanol blend within two years of the law's effectivity. The mandated blend will rise to at least 10 percent for ethanol after four years.

Apart from plans to put up ethanol plants, San Miguel is preparing to foray into the energy sector by submitting to the Power Sector Assets and Liabilities Management Corp. an expression of interest to participate in the bidding for the 25-year National Transmission Corp. concession in December.

Revocation of registration

Corporate & Securities Info
Raul J. Palabrica

FOR BIG-TICKET COMMERCIAL PROJECTS, like condominiums, golf courses and resort facilities, the name of the game is often the pre-selling of participation or membership shares.

Good business sense requires that sufficient funds are available or a credit line from a reputable financing institution is in place before groundbreaking is made on these projects.

But considering the huge start-up costs involved, the astute businessman would, if given the opportunity, prefer to use other people's money to finance their construction and operation.

The solicitation of funds from the public is often done through the sale of still-to-be constructed condominium units, or future playing or time-sharing rights.

What is sold, in effect, is the expectation or hope that the promised benefits will come to fruition at some future date.

To prove the sale, a certificate of deposit or investment is issued to the buyer either upon full payment of the selling price or after a certain number of installment payments have been made.

The success of a pre-selling activity depends on the track record of the people behind the project and the effectiveness of the advertising medium used to attract public attention.

Securities

Under the law, securities are not allowed to be sold or offered for sale in the country unless they are registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Securities are shares, participation or interests in a commercial enterprise or profit-making venture that are represented by a certificate or contract.

These include investment contracts, certificates of interest in a profit-sharing agreement, certificates of participation and membership certificates in corporations.

The documents issued by corporations to customers in the pre-sale of the project earlier mentioned, and other such complex [illegible], are classified as securities.

The registration requirement is the means by which information about the securities being offered for sale can be widely disseminated to the public.

The issuer of the securities has to state the material details about the project, e.g., estimated cost, planned facilities, scheduled date of completion, that can help an interested buyer decide whether or not to buy the securities.

When this information requirement is satisfactorily met, the SEC gives clearance to the issuer to offer its securities to the public.

Compliance

The fact that the SEC has given the go-ahead to sell the securities should not, however, be interpreted as an endorsement of the underlying project or assurance that the issuer will be able to live up to its promises.

The clearance simply means that the issuer has met the minimum criteria for a securities offering and that it has disclosed all the facts and figures needed for a prospective buyer to make an informed judgment on the securities.

But like any business venture, there is no guarantee that the project would succeed as planned. The construction schedule may suffer delay as the result in [illegible] problems or shortage of funds.

Upon the complaint of a securities holder or based on the issuer's filings with the SEC, the latter may look into the issuer's handling of the securities sale.

If these glitches are, say, traceable to fraudulent transactions, like unauthorized diversion of funds, or were already known to the issuer but were deliberately omitted from the registration statement, the SEC may, after notice and hearing, cancel the registration of the securities and stop their further sale.

Unpleasant the consequences of a revocation may be to the issuer, the action is necessary in order to protect the public from questionable or unreliable securities.

Continuing duty

The revocation of the registration does not mean an issuer is already excused from complying with its reportorial obligations to the SEC in regard to the securities and other related activities.

If it were, it would be like rewarding somebody for violation of the rules and regulations it had earlier promised to follow.

Thus, last month, the SEC adopted Resolution No. 274, which states that "corporations whose registration of securities and permit to sell securities to the public have been revoked for violation of the Securities Regulation Code and its Implementing Rules shall continue to be covered by the applicable registration and reportorial requirements for listed, registered or public companies."

Through the reports submitted by these corporations, the SEC can monitor the movement of their securities to prevent their manipulation and, when called for, take the proper action to protect the interests of the public.

But these oversight activities should not lull the public into a false sense of security in the purchase of securities offered by local and foreign companies.

It is advisable to look beyond the slick advertisement and glowing endorsements. Check the registration of the securities with the SEC. If it is registered, request from the issuer a copy of the prospectus it submitted in support of its application.

There is no harm in seeking advice from people in the know in case you cannot understand the contents of the prospectus. Weigh the pros and cons of investing in the offered securities. Remember, you worked hard for your money.

Cebu Pacific flies to China

Shanghai first, Xiamen Guangzhou, Macau next

By Rica T. Obiscondo

CEBU PACIFIC HAS COMPLETED its maiden flight to Shanghai, the first of four Chinese destinations that the Gokongwei-owned budget carrier will be flying to.

The 150-seat A319 deployed for the daily Manila-Shanghai service took off for the first time Wednesday night at 8:05 p.m. It arrived at the Shanghai Pudong International Airport at 11:45 p.m.

The Airbus departed from Shanghai at 12:30 a.m. yesterday and returned to its home base in the Ninoy Aquino International Airport terminal 1 at 4:30 a.m.

Cebu Pacific is so far the only ticket budget carrier serving international flights to Shanghai.

Also set to take off are direct flights from Manila to Xiamen, Guangzhou and Macau.

Cebu Pacific will start flying to Xiamen later this month and to Guangzhou and Macau in October.

"Seeing that China is a growing tourist market for the Philippines, we want to be able to replicate the success of our low-cost model in the Philippines to China as well," vice president for marketing and product Candice Iyog said.

The lowest "Go" fare to Shanghai starts at P2,999 one-way.

Iyog said the fastest way to book tickets is through the airline's website, www.cebupacificair.com.

"We are sure that with the low fares we are offering to and from Shanghai, we will be able to stimulate travel and help grow our tourist arrivals from China. We hope that more Filipinos take advantage of our year-round low fares to go and see Shanghai," Iyog said.

Now in its 12th year, Cebu Pacific has the youngest fleet in the Philippines with a fleet age of a little over one year.

The budget carrier operates 14 Airbus aircraft to 20 domestic destinations and soon to be 13 international destinations with the addition of Xiamen, Guangzhou and Macau.

Benguet undergoes 'branding' for tourists

By Dalmar Castro
Inquirer Northern Luzon

LA TRINIDAD, BENGUET —Trade and tourism officials are pushing the "branding," or formulation of taglines, as a new strategy to promote the province's unique resources and attract more investments and tourism.

But the marketing approach, designed to sell the province's potentials beyond its being the country's "vegetable bowl," is expected to stir some problems for tourists and local officials of Kibungan, one of the 13 towns being promoted.

The Department of Tourism (DOT) earlier cautioned local officials on wrong impressions created by "improper branding."

Purificacion Molintas, DOT Cordillera director, said a foreign tourist became frustrated when he found out that there were no snow slopes to ski on in Barangay Madaymen in Kibungan despite being widely advertised as the "Switzerland of Benguet."

Madaymen, a farming community where potatoes and carrots are grown, is Benguet's coldest village from December to February with frost appearing from time to time.

But to refer to Madaymen as "Switzerland" would be misleading," Molintas said last Wednesday. "This is a case of mistaken branding. In fact, the foreigner brought with him a complete set of skiing gear, but he was disappointed when he saw vegetables instead of snow."

But an investment brochure that the Department of Trade and Industry and DOT will issue next month still identifies Kibungan as "Switzerland of Benguet," a tagline that Kibungan officials refused to remove despite objections from the DOT.

In the brochure, the following lines accompany the tagline: "Kibungan is a cool place of rocky mountains and pine trees resembling that of Switzerland."

Molintas said Kibungan officials invoked a resolution that the town council passed earlier declaring the town as the "Switzerland of Benguet."

Milna Cruz-Abad, DTI investment promotions officer in Benguet, said the use of "Switzerland" became a subject of debate when the brochures were being prepared.

Cruz-Abad was advised to ask the town council to pass another measure withdrawing the resolution that declared Kibungan as the "Switzerland of Benguet."

The investment brochures for each of the 13 towns were part of an investment and tourism project the DTI and the DOT prepared in the last two years.

[illegible] kept in a mummy cave in Kabayan, Benguet

No objections were raised to the other taglines: Benguet (Where gardens bloom beneath the heavens), Mankayan (The bosom of gold and copper in Benguet), Atok (Where vegetables flourish and cacti flowers bloom), Tuba (Cradle of nature's gift), Sablan (Fruit basket of Benguet), Bokod (The coffee spring of Benguet), Tublay (Land of the fascinating caves), La Trinidad (Strawberry capital of the Philippines), Itogon (Land of golden opportunities), Kapangan (The custom producer of Benguet), Buguias (Vegetable panorama of the world), Bakun (Home of god Kabunian) and Kabayan (Home of the centuries-old mummies).

THE PHILIPPINE TATLER marks its sixth year as one of the premier chroniclers of the best of the best the country has to offer—from the latest in business, technology, politics, food, beauty and fashion. To celebrate this milestone, the much-anticipated, by-invitation-only Philippine Tatler Ball is set on Sept. 29 at the Makati Shangri-La Hotel.

Manila's social set is all aflutter, and the race is on to have the most fashionable frocks designed or purchased here and in fashion capitals around the world. Elegance and glamour are keywords to keep in mind when dressing for such an occasion.

APPLES' PICKINGS

Apples Aberin-Sadhwani

To illustrate what Manila's belles will be wearing, the Philippine Tatler tapped six fashion designers to dress their style icons of choice. All six designers envision different aesthetic directions—from the delicate and feminine, to the striking and avant-garde.

With creations that showcase each designer's individual style, the results were nothing short of fab. And these belles of the ball could not agree more.

Jun Escario and Amparito Lhuillier

To Jun Escario, inspiration always begins with the client. "Amparito looks elegant in anything she wears, and so always I wanted to follow the contour of her shape and enhance her face," Escario says. Amparito, donning a gray tulle dress, best describes it as "glamorous, but not over the top." Depending on the occasion, it is a very versatile piece. She adds, "Jun is a wonderful designer and I adore what he makes for me all the time."

Rajo Laurel and Loica Carpo

The first thing that comes to Rajo Laurel's mind when he thinks of the Philippine Tatler Ball is the word regal. As he describes, "I drew inspiration from new royalty and what I would design if a real princess would ask me to make her something."

Fashioned for Loica Carpo, the strapless gown in vintage brocade is adorned with a bustle and a back bow.

AMPARITO Lhuillier is radiant in Jun Escario's simple yet glamorous storm gray tulle dress.

Loica says, "A dress should set the tone to how you want to be perceived, but it should not overpower you. It's a suit of armor but part of your skin. Rajo is experimental and when he designs, it's always all or nothing. Although still within my framework of style, he and I are open to experimenting from choice of fabric, to the change in silhouette. I always embrace and welcome these changes. I like that he takes dressing to a whole new level."

Jojie Lloren and Marivic Vasquez

Jojie Lloren's belle of choice, Marivic Vasquez, adorns his modern take on the Maria Clara. Marivic says, "It really fits me like a glove. I love his cuts and designs because he really knows how to dress a woman." The use of two different fabrics adds texture to the gown, as it fuses both silk organza and suiting material, while the choice of color, an unconventional black, is bold for a classic silhouette. Truly modern sophistication at its finest.

Joey Samson and Daphne Oseña-Paez

Daphne Oseña-Paez describes her look as feminine and gravitates toward delicate fabrics and feminine embellishments. On the other side of the style spectrum, Joey Samson is known for his androgynous cuts that are most often associated with men's couture. An unexpected collaboration a few years back brought the two together, and they haven't stopped working with each other since.

While most designers opt to create a gown to a gala event, Samson takes the unconventional route. He explains, "I wanted to take the tuxedo suit to a different level. I was also fascinated by modern India, the proportions of the loose pants paired with kaftans." The result is a very ball-appropri-

BPI Celebrating 156 Years of Banking Excellence

The BPI Network: Creating Customer Touch Points to Suit Your Lifestyle

BPI@156

We'll take you farther.

Another innovation from the Bank of the Philippine Islands

BPI EXPRESS: The Friendly Place to Bank

Time. Somehow there's never enough. As everyone knows, time is money, and minutes matter. So the last thing you want is to spend time on routine tasks like banking. Just thinking about the lines – from the payday ATM rush to the long wait for the teller – can be stressful.

Even more stressful is not knowing how to do your transactions using the phone or the computer at the bank - it makes you wish someone took the time to help you figure things out. And when you want to consult about getting a loan or financial advice, you feel like everyone's listening in on what you're saying - the bank just doesn't seem private enough to talk about such matters.

But fret no more. Bank of the Philippine Islands has come up with a friendly solution–its newest branch type called BPI Express, now in more locations nationwide.

It's a bank that's adapted for today's hurried lifestyle.

From the moment you enter the stylish, not-so-bank-looking bank, you notice the difference. The sunny decor, relaxed yet fast-moving mood and even the helpful, friendly BPI Express Counselors make it feel more like a boutique than a bank.

Basic transactions are quick and easy with the BPI Express Electronic Banking zone.

There you'll find BPI Express Teller ATMs, a phone for BPI Express Phone and a computer to access BPI Express Online. Plus, a BPI Express Services Counselor is there to help you every step of the way. Once you learn how to do it, you can do your banking from the comfort of your home or your office.

BPI Express has friendly tellers on hand for your other transactions.

BPI Express caters to simple routine transactions, so lines at the tellers are short. Think of the whole branch as a supermarket Express Lane - a fast lane designed to move you through quickly and more pleasantly.

But the "Express" isn't just about speed; it's also about expression. Just tell us what you need, and we'll help you find it – not standing at a counter, but in the privacy and comfort of a personal workstation. Here, BPI Express Sales Counselors can give you simple, practical advice on loans, investments, financial planning and other money matters.

BPI Express offers private financial consultations.

So, if you want to have more control over your time and get friendly, fast service, come and visit the nearest BPI Express branch. You might just be surprised at how quick — and pleasant your banking experience could be.

The new retro mobile handsets chart the future with the spirit of the past

IN OUR DESIRE TO KEEP UP WITH THE race for the smaller and slimmer phones, we forget about what we used to love about a real telephone handset—one you can hold on to for hours during phone conversations, and simply knowing where to find the phone when it starts ringing, never having to worry about losing that unit that just set you back several thousand pesos.

The Yubz Talk mobile, a collection of classic retro telephone handsets, helps take us back to what we used to love in communication. The iconic handsets allow you to [illegible] the lines without [illegible] your hand and ear. And remember how easy it was to cradle a phone receiver between your ear and shoulder without it accidentally slipping and smashing onto the floor? The Yubz Talk mobile handset allows you to do that while keeping your slim and expensive mobile phone safe in your bag or table top while chatting away.

The phone is designed to be compatible with most mobile phone models. Just plug the handset into your mobile phone and take it with you anywhere. When you receive calls, the "Yubz answering" button lets you pick up and hang up any incoming call with one easy touch. If the hearing volume from the other caller is too loud, you can adjust its incoming volume with a volume dial.

A word of warning, though. You may make people do a double take, stop in their tracks, their mouths hanging open, then walk away shaking their heads. Pretty soon they'll remember where they've seen that before and want one of their own. That's the attention the handsets have been getting in Europe, North America, Japan and Hong Kong.

Yubz Talk handsets and accessories come in seven solid colors to match or complement today's modern mobile phones. Some mobile brands and models may require an adaptor, cords, and [illegible].

To personalize your handset, you can interchange your ear and mouthpieces, and its cables with the different-colored parts sold separately. Ergonomic, user-friendly and made with the highest quality materials, Yubz Talk retro mobile handsets and accessories are available at Discovery Shops of Rustan's.

Thanks to 'Be Bench: The Model Search,' which ran on ABS-CBN for eight weeks, Regine Angeles and Carlo Guevara are no longer anonymous

Two famous

THE "BE BENCH: MODEL Search" came to an end Tuesday before a live audience that packed the Big Dome to the rafters.

In the end, Carlo Guevara, 18, a senior high-school student at the Philippine Christian University and Regine Angeles, 21, a junior interior design student at De La Salle-College of St. Benilde, emerged as the new Bench models from among six finalists.

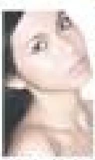

Kris Aquino and Piolo Pascual, both Bench celebrity endorsers themselves, hosted the grand finals, which also celebrated the lifestyle brand's 20 years in the business. For this reason, the evening's production included the Bench Overloaded and Bench Underwear shows that have for years been the hottest tickets in town.

For the first time, Bench partnered with television network ABS-CBN in its search for models for its range of men and women's fashion products, which are bannered by its best-selling Bench denim jeans and fast-growing women's line Kashieca.

Both companies came in full force to the "Be Bench: Beyond2007" grand finals at Araneta Coliseum. The ABS-CBN contingency was led by Gabby Lopez while Ben Chan himself represented Suyen Corp.

Guevara, who used to weigh 200 lb, had to lose the excess fat and gain enough self-esteem to try for the "Be Bench" model search. The baby of the family and of the show itself, he made it among the 12 finalists who became familiar faces to TV viewers in the course of the [illegible]
